NEW CONSIGNMENT OF MEDICAL EQUIPMENT DELIVERED TO USINSK HOSPITAL

The third consignment of medical equipment, purchased with personal funds of the President of LUKOIL Vagit Alekperov, arrived in the city of Usinsk, Russia. The consignment of six multi-purpose intensive care beds, delivered to support local health care, is intended for the Usinsk District Central Hospital.

"Our hospital has received high quality and reliable equipment. As the intensive care beds come with three independent flexible sections, they guarantee comfort for patients and ease of use for medical personnel. A supporter of our hospital since the first day of the pandemic, LUKOIL has been providing valuable contributions that are of critical importance for all of us – both the city residents and medical workers – especially in the tumultuous times of today," – Chief Medical Officer of the Usinsk District Central Hospital Maksim Churkin says.

The Usinsk Hospital, that has already received fifty types of equipment – ECG recorders, expendable items, personal protective equipment, used by medical staff to combat COVID-19, delivered early June, among them – expects five artificial lung ventilators to be delivered in the nearest future, too.
